

NORMAN HACKERMAN AWARD IN CHEMICAL RESEARCH

PURPOSE OF THE AWARD

The Welch Foundation's Norman Hackerman Award in Chemical Research was established to recognize the accomplishments of chemical scientists in Texas who are in their early careers and to serve as an encouragement to those who are embarking on careers dedicated to increasing our fundamental understanding of chemistry. The award is intended for the personal benefit of the recipient, and carries no requirement for future services as a condition of receiving it.

The award will be made on an annual basis, when warranted, to a scientist conducting chemical research in Texas.

A nominee must have spent the most recent three (3) years ending September 30, 2020 doing chemical research in Texas. On June 30 of the year of the award, a candidate for the award must be within 10 years of his or her initial appointment as an assistant professor or equivalent. For example, for the 2021 award, the initial appointment of the candidate as an assistant professor or equivalent must have begun no earlier than July 1, 2011. Directors and Officers of the Foundation and members of the Scientific Advisory Board of the Foundation are not eligible to receive the award.

The SAB will recommend to the Board of Directors not more than three nominees they determine are qualified to receive the award and the Board of Directors will make the final selection.

The award will be presented at a springtime function on the campus of the recipient's institution. The current monetary amount of the award is $100,000.
